

Free Health Action Plan training for 2014

All people with a learning disability should be offered a health action plan...

Health action plans are a way of promoting the health and well being of people with a learning disability in a person centred way.

To be a truly 'Person Centred Service' you need to make sure you are doing good health action plans and that you have enough trained health facilitators.

The 'Getting Started with Health Action Planning' training is a full day
Participants must be given the time to start a plan following this session.
