

Learning Disability Self Assessment Framework for 2013 and 2014

- This a plan that the big bosses in health and social care have to fill in every year to tell the government if we are providing good care and services to people with a learning disability locally
- Lots of people from health and social care are working on the plan
- As part of the work we need to ask people with a learning disability and their families about their experiences of using health services
- We have to tell the big bosses what we find out by the end of July

These are the big things the bosses in health and social care want to know about this year

- Compliance- policies plans following the law
- Data- information about numbers
- Measures- Checking how well areas are doing
- Lived experience- Peoples real stories

Using the 'I statements....'

- "I am supported to maintain my independence for as long as possible"
- " I understand how my care and support works, and what my entitlements and responsibilities are"
- " I am happy with the quality of my care and support"
- "I know that the person giving me care and support will treat me with dignity and respect"
- I am in control of my care and support

How do we find out about peoples experiences?

- The big bosses have asked the commissioners, (these are the people who plan and buy services for people with learning disabilities) to find out about peoples lives and their experiences to help them plan good services for the future

Lived experience- my story

- We would like to plan a day where we can meet people on the 28th of June so they can tell us their stories and real life experiences.
- We need to ask people with learning disabilities, their families, advocates, providers (people who run services) and others to meet with us
- We will then tell the Commissioners what people say to help them plan and buy services for the future
- We will also tell the Clinical Commissioning Groups and the Health and Well Being Boards what people say

Help us to plan the day

- We would like you to tell us what you would like to do on the 28th of June and who you would like to invite
